OLD TIMER OF RAILROAD WORLD IS SEEN BY MANY

Two Hours Late, Crowd Waits for Pioneer Express.

DE WITT CLINTON TRAIN HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Engine No. 999, Famous for Its Record Run, Draws the Exhibition.

The ninety-year-old "De Witt Clinton" train, which made its first run on the Mohawk and Hudson River railroad, August 9, 1831, and the celebrated locomotive "999," which set the unequaled speed record of 112.5 miles an hour while hauling the "Empire State Express" on May 10, 1893, were "honored visitors" in the city late Saturday night.

The two marvels of curiosity are enroute to New York from Chicago, where they have been on exhibit at the pageant of progress exposition.

Two Hours Late.

The train was scheduled to arrive at 5:45 Saturday evening and a large crowd was stationed in the street and along the Big Four tracks between Main and State streets, where the train was to make its stop of half an hour.

The train did not arrive, however, until 10:45 p. m., having been delayed at Bellefontaine for nearly two hours. The crowd never dwindled in number during the two hours wait.

The famous engine "999" hauled the train of several cars and the "De Witt Clinton" marvel was mounted on two long flat cars. The ancestor of modern trains was made up of an engine, tender, three coaches, which were nothing more than old-time stage coaches with wheels fitted to carry them on rails. The spectacle was very interesting.

Crew of Caretakers.

Along with the two famous exponents of railroad progress was a crew of caretakers and a man who explained the various parts of the exhibition and gave something of its history. Bills were also passed out which told of the history and records of the two marvels of olden times. The train left after a stay of half an hour.

One note of interest in regard to the "999" is the fact that since the famous record-holder made its eventful trip, the wheelbase of the drivers has been cut down from eighty-six inches to sixty-six inches.

PRICES REACH LOWEST LEVEL

Are Now Moving Upward, Leading Economist Declares.

LITTLE REDUCTION IN WAGES NOTED

Wages as a Whole in Country but Slightly Cut.

Economist Says Present Depression Is Financial and Not Industrial—Return to Good Times Is Expected Soon.

Washington, Aug. 22—High prices are here to stay.

W. Jett Lauck, one of the leading economists of the country, made this statement today. The good old days when Mr. Common Citizen's income met living costs without stretch of imagination or strain of pocketbook, are gone, never to return, he declared.

The return to normalcy means return to condition of 1919-1920, not to those of 1913-14, according to the economist.

"To expect a return of the prices and conditions of pre-war years is merely the blindness of men in always looking into the past for the golden age," he declared.

According to present indications, prices have reached their lowest level and are now moving upwards, the economist stated.

"There can be no doubt that prices are now advanced," he said. "Moreover, when fundamental industrial conditions are examined, it is perfectly clear that such advances are inevitable. The price of an article is the combined result of actual production costs—in which labor is the chief item—and the profits of the producer, wholesaler and retailer and others through which it passes before reaching the consumer. During the war these profits were excessive and profiteering ran rampant. Some improvements in this particular have taken place and much greater improvement could take place. But the cold, hard fact is that no important scaling down of profits is to be anticipated in the near future."

According to Lauck, who is consulting economist to railroad unions and the United Mine Workers of America, neither can any important reduction in the general wage level be anticipated.

Fall Is Slight.

Contrary to popular belief, wages on the whole have fallen to a surprisingly small extent. Here and there wages have fallen, he said, but the striking fact is not that some wage rates have fallen, but wages on the whole have fallen so little.

"This is partly due to the growing strength of labor to resist wage cuts, but primarily to a more alert public conscience which feels that the average wage earner, for his own sake and for the sake of the community, must have a higher standard of living than he has had in the past."

The present business depression, he declared, is primarily financial, not industrial. "There has been no substantial change in the underlying industrial factors," he said. "As soon as the financial tangle is unraveled, the way will be cleared for a revival of business under conditions not very dissimilar to those at the close of the war.

"We have been passing through a period of liquidation and depression, due essentially to the over-expansion of credit, which, in turn, was brought about chiefly by the continuation of artificially low interest rates after the armistice.

"These low interest rates led, as always, to speculation. The crash came. The price pendulum swung downward. Liquidation is apparently complete or will be shortly. The rate of discount will drop, the prices of stock will rise and then wholesale prices will rise to be followed shortly by retail prices.

"War conditions accustomed business men to a higher level and there is absolutely no indication that the business world will go back to the pre-war rates of profit."

NEW PARTY WITH A ROSY PLATFORM

New York, Aug. 22.—The "Backbenchers" party edged into the municipal political campaign today, with the rosiest platform ever put up to the city electorate. Abraham Shelton, who proclaimed himself a liberal Socialist, as well as a "backbencher" and who is the candidate of the new party for mayor, announced the following declaration of principles:

Seizure of all food reserves so that every person will be guaranteed three meals a day; a moratorium so that people can live rent free in their present homes; a four-hour working day.

MINERS READY TO MAKE MARCH

Advance Toward Charleston To Be Met with Force.

REIGN OF TERROR AROUND MARMET

Miners' Encampment Receives a Truckload of High-Powered Rifles and Ammunition.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 22—A delegation of miners from upper Coal River valley and Boone county arrived at Marmet, this morning and joined the 800 miners encamped there, the governor's office was advised this morning. Fifty men, most of them armed, left the mines of the Raleigh Wyoming Coal company at Edwight, Raleigh county, this morning, to join the Marmet "army," a telephone message from the sheriff's office in Raleigh county stated.

The sheriff also stated that with a posse he was, today, engaged in rounding up suspects in connection with the shooting, Friday, at Edwight, of State Trooper Lehman Martin, who is still in a critical condition. About forty arrests have been made.

Should the miners advance towards Charleston, they will be met at the Kanawha bridge by city police and state troops who are mobilized for the contingency and will oppose their entry at all costs.

There was a reign of terror last night, in the territory immediately surrounding the camp at Marmet, reports reaching here today state. Officers of the law have been held up, robbed and threatened with death, according to reports reaching the governor's office.

It is said that only about 200 of the miners are visible, with the main body of 600 encamped further back in the hills, assembling ammunition for the proposed march.

No Information.

Residents of Marmet refuse to give any information in regard to the gathering or its purposes. All inquiries are met with the response, "don't know anything. You'll have to get your information somewhere else."

W. H. Spurlock, a justice of the peace, driving up Lens creek road, yesterday, accompanied by his son, was held up scores of times, he stated, today, but was not harmed. It took three hours for him to cover a distance of three miles.

"I am not having anything to do with conditions at Marmet," said Frank Keeney, president of district No. 17, United Mine Workers of America, this afternoon. "I have been instrumental in turning the miners back many times, but this time I will keep my hands off."

Ammunition from Charleston is reaching the encamped band, but teh source is not known to the authorities. A truck loaded with high-powered rifles and revolvers from Charleston was seen entering the encampment, this morning, officials declare.

The robbery of a company store of the Marmet Coal company was reported here today. Provisions and other articles were taken.

TWO AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION ON SUNDAY

Goldie Haines Carried into Home. Not Badly Hurt.

Two automobiles collided at the corner of Olney avenue and Foster lane Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock, both machines being damaged. Miss Violet Kean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kean, of Olney avenue, accompanied by Billie Miss Goldie Haines, was driving one car. The other was driven by William Wetteraner, of Blaine avenue. The Haines girl was carried into a house near the scene of the accident, but was not seriously injured.

HUMAN BONFIRE IN TOMBS TODAY

Negro Prisoner Seeks Self-Destruction by Fire.

SOAKS CLOTHING WITH KEROSENE

Applies Match and Is Quickly a Mass of Flames—Officers Attempt Rescue.

New York, Aug. 22.—A human bonfire sent thrills of terror through Tombs prison today. Sylvester Crockett, a negro, intent on cheating the law and life and Sing Sing, devised and partially carried out one of the most grewsome schemes to end it all. In a cell at the Tombs he first drenched clothing and his body from head to foot with kerosene, then wound a noose made out of a handkerchief and after tying it so tightly around his neck that it stopped his breath, applied a match to his oil-saturated clothing. Within a second he was a human torch, the flames scorching the cell and the fumes spreading throughout the jail. He was horribly burned before attendants could extinguish the blaze and he will probably die.

The negro was to have been taken to Sing Sing today, to begin a five-year sentence for an attack on a policeman.

When deputy wardens, aided by keepers, had put out the flames, Crocket was a sight that made even the hardened Tombs guards shudder. Except for shreds of coat and trousers that had been pasted to the body by the liquid fire, there was not a bit of clothing left on the man. Every bit of hair had been burned. Even his face seems to have been soaked in oil, for the sight of one eye was literally burned out and where the eyebrows had been there were holes from which hung greenish shreds of skin.

The negro had been left in the cell pending arrangements for his being finger-printed, photographed and measured. In his cell stood a can of kerosene used to clean ink from the hands of prisoners after being finger-printed.

Crockett made not a single outcry while he was burning.

PLAN DEMONSTRATION AGAINST MARTIAL LAW

Armed Miners Will Attempt To Invade Mingo County.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 22—According to Sheriff Walker of Kanawha county, 600 men from the Cabin Creek and Paint Creek coal fields, who have expressed the intention of marching to Mingo county as a demonstration against martial law in force there, are still in camp at Marmet.

Sheriff Don Chafin of Logan county, through whose territory the 50-mile march to Mingo lies, said that 'no armed mob' will cross the Logan county line. He added that he was "little interested in the gathering of the miners, but that he was prepared to meet any emergency."

State authorities continued to keep in touch with the situation, but reiterated they would not interfere until the sheriff asked for aid. Sheriff Walker said he had no reason yet to interfere.

Most of the men, according to the sheriff, who visited the camp, are armed with shotguns, rifles and sidearms. Probably half of them, he said, are negroes. They are subsisting entirely upon beans, which are cooked over open fires in the hollow where they have assembled and stacked their arms.

MISS BERNICE PATTERSON WEDS MR. HARRY PACE

Ceremony Performed at Lebanon—Future Home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pace, their daughter, Mrs. B. Harold Buettin, and their son, Mr. Murel Pace, of this city, attended the wedding Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Pace's son, Mr. Harry Pace, of Dayton, and Miss Bernice Patterson, of Lebanon.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Patterson, at noon that day by Rev. Charles S. Williams, of Norwood. Among the attendants were Mrs. Buettin, formerly Miss Mildred Pace, and a recent bride, who was one of the bridesmaids. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Murel Pace. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a dress of white crepe de chine and her veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

Following a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Pace left for a short trip. The bride is a graduate of Lebanon high school and the Northern university at Ada, where she met her husband while they were both studying pharmacy. Mr. Pace is also a graduate of the Northern university and is now a pharmacist in a drug store in Dayton. During the war he saw several months service in France. Mr. and Mrs. Pace will be at home at No. 304 Jones street, Dayton, after September 1.

MONUMENT UNVEILED IN FRANCE YESTERDAY

Dedicated to Memory of American Expeditionary Force.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Lorraine's monument to the American expeditionary forces, the dedication of which was one of the principal objects of the visit of the American Legion delegation to France, was unveiled at Flirey by the legion's representatives, in the presence of the whole countryside. Marshal Foch, Louis Barthou, minister for the liberated regions, and Ambassador Herrick participated in the ceremonies. The people of Flirey were deeply affected by the memories the unveiling brought up.

The legionaries came in automobiles from Metz. Major John G. Emery, national commander of the American Legion received from M. Barthou the insignia of commander of the Legion of Honor and from Marshal Foch the war cross with the palm, in recognition of his having been wounded during the fighting in the Argonne and being cited in American army orders.

UPHEAVAL PREDICTED IN "DRY" ORGANIZATION

Ohio "Dry" Law Enforcement Body May Be Reorganized.

Washington, Aug. 22.—An upheaval in the Ohio prohibition enforcement organization may be the outcome of conferences held at the treasury department at which, it is said, startling evidence was brought out in regard to alleged conspiracies of prohibition agents with bootleggers and distillers in Ohio. Chief Inspector Irey of the internal revenue bureau was in conference with Commissioner Blair and later the internal revenue commissioner had a conference with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

It was announced that four prohibition agents at Youngstown have been suspended and that other suspensions may be ordered. The alleged combine of whisky handlers with federal agents is said to center in and around Youngstown.

Income Tax Bill Passed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The tax revision bill passed by the house was [illegible] received by the senate today and sent to the senate finance committee without debate. It is the intention of the committee to begin consideration of the tax measure in a few days, and to sidetrack the tariff bill for it.

MOTHER KILLS HER BABE IN CLEVELAND

Refuses To Allow Little One To Die of Starvation.

Cleveland, Aug. 22—Rather than see her baby boy, aged one week, die by starvation, Mrs. Mary Soltis, twenty-six, told police this morning that she ended its life by smothering it to death. She is held at Central police station on a charge of murder.

Neighbors told police, yesterday, that she had been trying to dispose of the baby's body. A search revealed the little form hidden in a lunch box in the basement of the home.

With Mrs. Soltis when she was arrested were two other children, John, seven, and Mary, four, both crying with hunger. The only food in the house, which had been stripped of its furniture to buy necessities, were a few crusts of dry bread and some scraps of spaghetti.

Her husband, John Soltis, left home several weeks ago, searching for work. He was last heard from at Clarendon, Pennsylvania.

INSURANCE IN OHIO IS VAST BUSINESS

Million Ordinary Life Policies in Force in State.

Columbus, Aug. 22.—The annual report by B. W. Gearheart, state superintendent of insurance, to Governor Davis, shows 1,011,154 ordinary life policies in force in Ohio for $1,927,260,471, an increase of $326,269,142 since a year ago. Premiums on this class of policies amounted to $72,350,659, against losses of only $19,296,513.

While there are several times as many weekly payment or industrial policies, the aggregate of the faces of the policies is far less.

The report shows 3,596,972 industrial policies in force for $511,838,315, an increase of $72,160,561. Premiums totaled $18,591,592, against losses of $4,592,732.

Group insurance, a system of employers paying life insurance premiums for employes, shows the biggest percentage of growth during the year. The report shows 384 such policies for $129,690,882, against only 285 policies for $125,374,185 last year.

Ohio fraternal associations reported 294,159 certificates, aggregating $796,718,589, an increase of $94,117,-852. Losses paid by Ohio fraternal associations amounted to $5,115,012.

NEGRO PRISONER MAKES ESCAPE

Walks Away During Rush at Middletown Jail.

Middletown, Aug. 22.—Before police had registered a negro arrested upon suspicion of theft, the prisoner escaped by climbing through a window of the jail, while officers were busy registering a rush of other prisoners.

John Litman, nineteen and Harry Matthews, nineteen, arrested in company with the unidentified negro, when the three were found driving a sport model Cadillac, refer to him as "Tate."

Three officers were present while Tate stepped through a low window and walked away.

BRYCE'S STATEMENT ON DISARMAMENT

Europe Must Disarm or Nations Will Fall.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 22—Europe faces the alternatives of reduction of armament or ruin, Viscount James Bryce asserted in a lecture at the institute of politics here.

"As the greater European countries are already beggared by the last war," he said, "it is plain that they will ere long be ruined by the continuance of expenditures on the present war scale. They ought, therefore, to welcome the invitation which has proceeded from the United States to a conference on the subject, as it has already been welcomed by the people of Britain and the British dominions everywhere." After describing some of the obstacles to such an agreement, he declared "no difficulties can be allowed to deter the nations from grappling with an enterprise of such urgent importance."

WOMAN VICTIM OF CLEVELAND SHOOTING

Said To Have Been Killed by Husband Last Night.

Cleveland, Aug. 22.—A woman was instantly killed and a man may die as a result of a shooting affray at a rooming house at No. 5707 St. Clair avenue, last night. The woman, Mrs. Anna Lukas, is said to have quarreled with her husband a week ago, when she decided to keep roomers. The husband is reported to have left at that time, taking a three-year-old son with him, but is said to have returned last night and quarreled with and shot his wife and a roomer, John Remsie, who will probably die.

Aviation Accident.

ARREST CLEARS UP A MYSTERY

Farm Hand Held for Murder of Wife.

SON OF PRISONER MAKES CONFESSION

Father Tells Him of Murder. Developments in Coney Island Bath-House Case.

Granite City, Illinois, Aug. 22—With the arrest at Junction, Illinois, today, of Arthur Dorman, a farm hand, the mystery surrounding the murder of a woman whose body was found buried in a shallow grave near here, June 10, has been solved Chief of Police Ray Clark announced. John Dorman, son of the man in custody, has confessed, Clark declared, that his father told him that he had slain his wife and buried the body in the corn field.

The body of the slain woman had previously been identified as that of Mrs. Serena Gilliland, who was located several days ago in Cincinnati and returned here. Following the return of Mrs. Gilliland, a charge of murder against her husband was dismissed.

Scouts Theory.

New York, Aug. 22—While the police were still searching for the body of Mrs. E. S. Cheatham, well-to-do widow whose abandoned clothing were found in a Coney Island bathhouse yesterday, her son-in-law, Roy Mayo, a Manhattan investment broker, took issue with authorities, this afternoon, by filing papers in the supreme court challenging the theory that the woman is dead at all.

By comparison and inference, Mayo charged that the disappearance of his mother-in-law is a second attempt by her and her daughter—his wife — Mrs. Charlotte Catherine Mayo, whom he is now suing for divorce, to exploit his pity and sentimentality by a melodramtic coup. But to him, he declares, this is "old stuff" and will not stop him from filing new and sensational charges against his wife and mother-in-law. In proof whereof he did file his charges this afternoon.

Once before, so he charged, his mother-in-law had to throw a scare into him by doing the "disappearing act." On that occasion, he said, he was notified she had thrown herself into Lake Michigan in an attempt to drown herself, but had been rescued and taken to a hospital. The next he heard of her, he says, was that she was serving a twenty-two-day sentence in the Bridewell prison for shoplifting and after she got out he had to pay a fine of $31.50 for her. In his petition, Mayo asks for the custody of the much-kidnaped infant, Charlotte, on the ground that neither his wife nor his mother-in-law is fit to have the child in their care.

The broker filed an affidavit by Chief of Police J. M. Daly, of Pueblo, California, to the effect that one H. F. Mehr, arrested in that city, had confessed helping Mrs. Cheatham, then known as Mrs. Golden, and her daughter— Mrs. Mayo— blackmail traveling men. The chief of police added he still holds two suit cases belonging to the women who, he says, "got away."

An affidavit by H. A. Williams, formerly mayor of Memphis, Tennessee, also was attached to the broker's petition. Williams tells of going to California with his wife to bring back Mrs. Cheatham upon reports to her relatives in Memphis that she was leading a "reprehensible and evil life." Ex-Mayor Williams adds that arriving in the West, he found Mrs. Cheatham was "living in such a manner that she was known as a police character." He prevailed on her to go back to Memphis with him, but later went to Colorado.

Against his wife, Mayo charges specifically that she did not tell the truth when, in applying for a marriage license in 1916, she affirmed she had never been married before. He avers she was the wife of John P. Archuleta, of Denver, Colorado, before she married him. He further declares she gave her age as eighteen, while she actually was twenty-two.

Body Is Found.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 22.—The body of Arthur A. Woodbury, of Walton, Massachusetts, who disappeared from the LaFayette hotel in Buffalo, July 27, was found today at Harbor Creek, Pennsylvania, eight miles east of Erie. The man apparently had been murdered. A watch charm bearing his name was the means of identification. The body was found in an elderberry patch by a farmer who was hunting a stray cow.

Surveyor Killed.

Akron, Aug. 22.— Edward Paul, forty-one, former county surveyor and later captain in the 101st regiment of engineers in the World war, is dead at his home here, as a result of an automobile accident late yesterday. Paul was driving with his family near Twinsburg when the automobile overturned, pinning him beneath the wreckage. Mrs. Paul was also seriously injured.

EVIDENCES OF THE CORN BORER

Columbus, Aug. 22.—Evidences of the European corn borer are being found in various places in Ohio by federal and state agricultural officials. Larvae of the pest has been discovered on all the islands north of Sandusky and Port Clinton and on Catawba island, which is a portion of the mainland substantially. A moth has been found on the mainland.

Federal and state authorities are cooperating in an effort to determine the scope of infestation and will cooperate in plans for stamping the pest out of Ohio.

WITNESSES ARE NOT ON HAND

Delay Work of State Utilities Commission Today.

TWO HOCKING VALLEY OFFICERS QUESTIONED

Testimony Taken Touching Lower Freight Rates in Ohio. Views Expressed.

Columbus, Aug. 22.—Because of the absence of a number of witnesses, a brief session was held this forenoon and a recess taken until this afternoon, by the state utilities commission relative to its inquiry into the Ohio railroad freight-rate situation.

M. A. Kinney, superintendent of motive power, Hocking Valley railway, and W. T. Morgan, of the engineering department of the same road, were on the stand today. They were questioned concerning the road's operating expenses.

The testimony of these officials was designed to support the claim by the railroads that their recent joint offer of reduced freight rates, involving the minimum rates now prevailing in lower Michigan contains the lowest rates the Ohio roads can stand prior to next January, at least.

It was reported here today that a twenty-per-cent. reduction in prices of their products has been promised by officials of road-building material concerns as soon as freight rates decline.

PRESIDENT TAKES HAND IN MATTERS

Would Have Congress Cooperate with Shipping Board.

Washington Aug. 22—In a letter addressed to Senator Wesley L. Jones, Washington, chairman of the senate committee on commerce, President Harding goes to the defense of the shipping board. He said he deplored the reluctance of congress to make appropriations for the continued activities of the board "without putting specific restraints upon the board's activities in employing agents of relief." He urged congress to co-operate, that the past 'evils of administration" be cured promptly.

"We can not allow the discouraging things which have gone before to prevent us facing the situation frankly," the president wrote. "The shipping board situation is wholly an inheritance from the previous administration," declared the president. "It would avail nothing to attempt to outline how the intolerable state of affairs came about. Our problem is curing the situation. It was no easy thing to bring capable men to the solution of this task."

Indorsing Chairman Lasker's efforts to get "big" men to aid in getting the board on its feet, the president declared that if they could end operating losses their salaries would be more than justified.

Quarterly Dividend.

Findlay, Aug. 22.—Regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share was declared today by the board of directors of the Ohio Oil company, at a meeting here. The dividend is payable September 30, to stockholders of record August 29.

AMERICAN SCIENTISTS

Paid Tributes by Professor Albert Einstein.

FINDS AMERICANS ALERT AND PROGRESSIVE

Einstein Says Scientific Men in United States Are Not Fettered by Prejudices.

Berlin, Aug. 22. — "American scientists lead in the fields of astronomy and experimental mineralogy as well as in certain branches of experimental physics," is the opinion of Professor Albert Einstein, known as the father of the doctrine of relativity. "Optimism, energy and ambition are qualities of the American scientist which are bringing him to the fore," said Einstein. "Furthermore, the American students lack the spirit of skepticism so predominant in Europe."

Professor Einstein received the correspondent in the library of his Berlin apartment. "A long brass telescope in the corner of the room several globes and astronomical instruments were all that distinguished his simple library from that of any of his neighbors. His favorite violin and the piano in the adjoining room are equally prominent in indicating the trend of his tastes.

"I want to take this occasion to tell America how thankful I am for the hearty support, both in scientific and in official circles and the charming hospitality extended to me on my recent trip to America," said the professor.

"Of course, I can not be held responsible for statements which appeared in certain newspapers. They put assertions into my mouth which I never uttered. They made me criticize where there was no criticism. It was very regretable.

"American scientific laboratories are wonderfully well equipped and I have never seen anything so complete as the laboratory of Millikin and Michaelson in Chicago. One of the most striking impressions I received of America is the degree to which the technical contrivances for everyday comfort are developed; everything in the house is practical and labor-saving; efficiency with a minimum of effort and movement. Of course, this, in a way, represents luxury."

"What do you thing of American universities; how do they compare with the German schools?" the correspondent asked.

"An American university reminds me of a large family," replied the professor. "The relations of the students to one another and of the students to the faculty certainly give one this complete impression. The American students do not take much practical interest in politics in the aggressive manner of German students, but that is perhaps in Germany a concomitant of the revolution.

"The international relations between the word scientists are improving, although, of course, the scars of the World war have not yet been effaced. In both England and America I find a distinct desire to cooperate with the scientists of the Central powers for the advancement of science."

IMPROVED LAND IN THE UNITED STATES

Washington, Aug. 22.—There were 506,982,301 acres of improved land in the United States in 1920 and of this, 316,451,438 acres were operated on farms operated by their owners, while 13,471,190 acres were operated by managers and 177,059,673 acres by tenants, the census bureau announced today. The acreage of improved lands increased 28,530,351 acres, or six per cent., during the past decade. The average acreage of improved land per farm in 1920, was 78.6, as compared with 75.2 acres in 1910.

OBITUARY

DeLong—Donna Varie, daughter of Harley S. and Laura M. Zelg DeLong, was born in Green Camp township, Marion county, Ohio, February 1, 1912, and departed this life at the City hospital at Marion, Ohio, August 15, 1921, aged nine years, six months and fourteen days.

Donna was a most lovable child. She was kind and loving to all her friends, obedient to her parents and teachers and, with beaming smiles and cheefulness, scattered sunshine and gladness wherever she went. She loved her books, her music and the flowers. She loved the Sunday-school and church services, and was never happier than when among the folks.

Having always lived on the farm and being much among the flocks and herds, she had something of the "rustic woodland air" about her which, combined with her becoming modesty, served to make hers a most charming personality, that gripped her friends as with hooks of steel.

Her passing is a distinctive loss to her family, the church and to us all. But in that Godly land we shall find her again more radiant, more glorious than she was when she went away. Look beyond the hills, dear friends, Donna is safe in the arms of the blessed Shepherd.

Besides her parents she leaves to mourn their loss, two brothers, Victor, aged seven years, and Troy, aged nine months, grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zelg, Grandmother DeLong, and many other relatives and friends.

HAY FEVER SEASON IS NOW WIDE OPEN

Movement North Has Already Started in Earnest.

A new and novel means for relief from hay fever has been discovered And it's pleasurable. No running away from the disease into high altitudes It can be done by a simple twist of the wrist right at home. Here it is. Yesterday a gentleman told the hay fever editor that he believed it was a nervous disease in the case of most people, coming from the imagination with perhaps a little aid from flying dust and pollen, and in his case he determined to experiment, says Saturday's Bucyrus Telegraph. The result is that he has found that a good stiff game—not drink—of rum enables him to eliminate the "ka-choos" for a time. The effect is secured by getting the mind off the hay fever. While not recommending it as a universal cure he says it may help. Then too another friend during a conversation in which the disease was mentioned advocated this simple method of preventing the devastating sneeze. He merely lays his finger horizontally along the upper lip below the nostrils and he says it works every time While we have not been able to test this method it listens good.

Hay fever seems to be a disease quite temperamental in its fancies, picking out it is said, people who are usually of considerable intellectual ability for its victims. No man knows the hour that it cometh either. Yearly devotees are accustomed to await its coming with valises packed ready to spring aboard the first train for north with a grip full of fishing tackle and handkerchiefs The disease makes its appearance with the seeding of members of the grass family including hay, maize and some of the common weeds. It is thought that the disease is caused by some poison secreted in the pollen of these plants which affects the delicate mucous membranes lining the nose and throat and not as commonly supposed mechanical

Asthma is a related disease and the two are often confused. Some people are very susceptible to the toxic action of this poison, quickly succumbing to the disease. The story is told of a pompous speaker who had been invited to a dinner and who had in some way found himself on the after dinner program. Some of the members of the committee not wishing to have him take up the entire evening liberally decorated the table near his plate with bunches of golden-rod. When it came his turn to speak the delicate scents of the rose had sent in the danger signal and already the counter attack or the disturbing poison had started. He was unable to finish his speech.

Most of the remedies that have been suggested for the cure or relief of hay fever are palliative. Climate has much to do with the disease removal to a northern climate or a sea shore giving relief to chronic sufferers. A Berlin scientist, working on the theory that the disease is caused by the toxic action of the pollen obtained a serum from dogs by which he was able to prevent the disease This serum is now manufactured by reliable companies in the United States and it is claimed that by inoculation three or four weeks before the disease is due, prevention is assured.

Owing to the fact that climate ameliorates the disease and that it usually comes during the early fall or late summer, many people migrate to the lands of less effect. The exodus has begun already. Watering eyes and dripping noses with the recurring explosions mark many of the sufferers in the city. Wonder if any of them belong to the Hay Fever Association of America?

SAYS INNOCENCE AND RIGHT ARE TRIUMPHING

ADDRESSING LAST UNION SERVICE OF THE SEASON

Special Musical Program by the Epworth M. E. Sunday-School Orchestra.

Beasthood, typifying evil and sin, is dying out of the world and innocense and right are triumphing, Dr Jesse Swank, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church, told the congregation in his sermon at the closing union vesper services on the Central Junior High school grounds on west Center street, Sunday evening.

A special musical program by the Epworth Sunday-school orchestra preceded the sermon. The first number was a song by the congregation, "Jesus Is All the World to Me," and the orchestra played "Eleanore." The next was a song by the congregation, "Sunshine In My Soul." The orchestra played "Pastorale" and the congregation sang "Saved, Saved." A tone poem, "Bowl of Pansies," was played by the orchestra, the congregation sang "In the Service of the King," the orchestra played "The Heavens Are Telling," and the congregation sang "Dwelling in Beulah Land." The final orchestra number was "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Welcome Is Extended.

Dr O F Laughbaum, pastor of the United Brethren church, offered prayer and the scripture reading was by Rev D H Moritz, pastor of the Salem Evangelical church. Dr. Laughbaum announced that the service would close the union vesper services, invited those who hold membership in various churches to be more faithful and promised others who hold no church membership a welcome in any of the churches of the city.

Dr. Swank took his text from the fourteenth chapter of Revelations. "And the Lamb shall overcome them."

"This tells us that ultimately wickedness is bound to be destroyed," Dr Swank said. "The Lamb means the Savior of the world and the word then means a certain kind of beasts that typify wickedness and sin. This sentence tells of the world- old struggle between evil and good and promises the final victory of the Lamb.

Shall Be Overcome.

"There are many beasts and they always stand for evils, sin and the worst passions and appetites of the human which always seek to overpower man. No matter how many beasts there are, no matter what combination they form, the ultimate decree of God is found in the words of this text 'The Lamb shall overcome them.'

This is an age when it is easy to say that Christianity is a failure, but I want to tell you this is not true. It is a bad thing for any one to become discouraged. I do not intend to become discouraged, because I have too much love for and faith in God."

It Is Infinite Law.

Illustrating this point that the most powerful forces on earth are the forces of kindliness and gentleness, Dr. Swank related the fable of the wind and the sun arguing about which was the more powerful and how the sun, by its gentle rays, forced the traveler to take off his coat after the wind had failed. He cited examples in the animal kingdom and declared that "It is the infinite law of God that the helpless shall conquer the mighty, because God is on the side of right."

"The United States," Dr Swank said, "is the only country which left the beast out when it established itself, but it took a bird of prey as a symbol. The time will come when the dove will be chosen as the symbol of every nation that believes in peace and not war. The triumph of the future is to be won by gentle forces, love not hate, peace not war and building, not destruction. God calls upon us all to banish the beast from our lives and adopt the lamb."

REV. J. W. DONNAN TO RETIRE FROM PULPIT

After Farewell Sermon at Asbury Church Next Sunday.

HE AND HIS BRIDE ARE TO LIVE AT MANSFIELD

Forty-Three Years Ago Rev Mr. Donnan Takes Up His Ministerial Work.

The close of this conference year will mark the close of the services of the Rev. John W. Donnan, of Delaware, and pastor of Asbury M. E. church, this city, in the ministry.

Forty-three years ago this fall Rev. Mr. Donnan took up his work for the Lord, keeping courageously on through thick and thin, always winning out. Rev. Mr. Donnan has served eleven years of his ministry in Marion county, and seven years in Marion.

Twenty Years Ago.

Twenty years ago last June, he built Wesley M. E. church, and served two years on that charge. The past five years he has been pastor of Asbury M. E. church, and he has accomplished a splendid work in this charge, both in a spiritual and financial way. Nearly every Sunday during his five years here he has been present, always with a wonderful message for the people. Though having to come from Delaware every

REV. J. W. DONNAN.

Sunday, whether good weather or bad, and whether he felt able at all times to come, he was usually present with a cheerful greeting for all.

Wins Many Friends.

Rev. Mr. Donnan has won many friends in and about Marion, who are sorry indeed to learn that he is retiring from the ministry. They all hope, however, that he will not forget them, and if he should take up any more work, wish him best of success. He will deliver his farewell sermon next Sunday evening, and all of his old friends are cordially invited to attend these services.

Rev. Mr. Donnan was recently married, and his wife, who was formerly Miss Jennie Ferguson, of Mansfield, will be present next Sunday. Mrs. Donnan was formerly a school teacher. Following his retirement, Rev. and Mrs. Donnan will make their home in Mansfield.

A meeting of the church board and Ladies' Aid was held Sunday morning to decide on a way in which to raise the balance of the pastor's salary, the church being back a considerable sum.

Don't wait too long. Buy a home site on Vernon Heights Boulevard now—you'll thank us later. Phone our sales office this evening. Adv. 1-c

CHURCH SOCIETY

At Fite Memorial Church.

William Headley, of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, preached both morning and evening at the Fite Memorial Baptist church. In the morning he spoke on "Past, Present and Future of the Grace of God," taking his text from Titus 2:11-13, and in the evening his subject was "God's Reasoning with Man," and his text was taken from Isaiah 1:18

The attendance was good both morning and evening.

Mr. Headly left this morning for Cascade, Wisconsin, where he and Mrs. Headly are supplying at a church their during the summer.

Wesley Church Picnic.

About 150 attended the annual picnic of the Wesley M. E. Sunday-school at Garfield park Saturday afternoon and evening. A most delightful time was enjoyed with games and other outdoor amusements and a picnic super was served.

A ball game was held in the afternoon between men under thirty and men over thirty. The younger men captained by Merle Lashey defeated the older men, captained by George Burroughs, by a score of fifteen to fourteen. The game went ten innings. The women also amused themselves by playing a game of ball. The younger and older girls gave drills, under the direction of Luther Durham.

At Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Frank C. Colvin, of Columbus, a field representative of the Presbyterian church in Ohio, filled the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church yesterday in the absence of Dr. Linius L. Strock.

Sunday-School Election.

A reorganization of the Sunday-school of the United Brethren church, took place yesterday during the regular Sunday-school period, yesterday morning, and the following is the result of the reorganization: Superintendent, L. Judge Mouser, Louis E. Myers, Dr. H. R. McVay and Others Speak.

About 500 were present yesterday at the second annual Hillegan reunion held in Garfield park. Lawrence county had eighty-four the largest number of natives present, and Gallia county was second with sixty-eight.

The meeting opened with singing America and Mayor T. E. Andrews welcomed them to Marion, the county of their adoption.

The Elks' double quartet favored with a couple of selections, which were well received.

Attorney L. E. Myers then gave a short address. After two more selections by the Elks' double quartet, Dr. E. H. Morgan, a native of Gallia county, spoke.

Dr. H. R. McVay, superintendent of the Marion public schools, and a native of Athens county, addressed the audience, taking the place of Hon. A. R. Johnson, of Ironton, who Saturday was called to Washington. Mrs Ethe Neal spoke. The last address was given by Judge Grant E. Mouser, of Marion.

Recitations and Songs.

Dialogues were given by Marie Dudley, Genevieve Dowing and Mary Louise Winters; Dorothy Bruce, Anna Lee Winters and Helen Bruce; piano solos were rendered by Clara Gillen and a duet was sung by Kathryn McCluskey and Elizabeth Hutchinson, accompanied on the piano by Reba Hutchinson.

The officers elected for next year are B. F. Winters, president; Fern McCluskey, secretary and Mrs. Ethe Neal, treasurer.

The next reunion will be held at Garfield park the third Sunday of next August.

SULSER FAMILY HOLDS SIXTH ANNUAL REUNION

Home of George A. Sulser Scene of Affair.

The sixth annual reunion of the Sulser family was held Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Sulser, eight miles west of Marion. THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"Rashness brings success to few, misfortune to many."

Talking about an awful alternative, think of "medicinal beer or no recess!"

Never tell us that vigorous protests are of no avail. Note how the irreducible cost of state road construction is being reduced!

Geraldine Farrar says her husband is conceited. If that's going to pass as a ground for divorce what the heartbtones of the country are going to suffer will be something simply awful.

Paris designers say skirts will be longer next season, but it's a fairly safe bet that they never consulted the girls.

Ohio lake resorts are doing such a business as never before, we are told. Every hotel and cottage is packed and jammed. A reflex of the railroad rates. People are taking their vacations nearer home.

Over 5,000 names were stricken off the government payroll down in Washington in July. Well, that's another step toward normal.

"I see that New York movie houses have cut out their music," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today. "Why not? If music is what movie patrons want they can go to church and save money."

Frankly, Mr. Morrison will not make much headway in the esteem of thinking people by contending that employes have the right voluntarily to suspend work and at the same time denying employers the right voluntarily to suspend employment. Both work economic wrong.

Another thing not worth worrying about is the fact that Trotzky is again predicting war between the United States and Britain. It's always safe to copper Mr. Trotzky's predictions to lose.

The cost of government for several years past has been simply awful! Why, if applied thereto, it would have supplied every man, woman and child in the United States with what was once a five-cent cigar every day in the year with an extra one every other Sunday

Something tells us that if the Ontario authorities are really sincere in their announced determination to stop rum running, it will be but a question of time till it isn't more than a trickle.

"My esteem for Mr. Lenine may not be a fair one," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "but to my way of thinking, the surest way to feed Lenine's army rather than the starving of Russia is to take all food relief supplies into Russia at one time."

GERMAN INDUSTRIAL BOOM.

Last week the German mark declined, among the international exchanges, to a lower point than it has commanded since November of last year. The price got down to 1.0675 cents, and the drop caused much comment in financial circles.

At present the situation is dominated by enormous speculation in exchange in Europe, not only in marks, but in the currency of other nations also. The cheapness of marks, it will be news to many to hear, is not disturbing Germans to any great extent For one thing, they have become accustomed to it, and for another thing, German bankers and manufacturers are not unduly concerned about the low rate of exchange In fact, they prefer to see marks cheap, as that discourages importation of foreign goods and makes both domestic materials and labor cheap, and facilitates exports

There is no underproduction in Germany now Every one is working, and working hard, to get back the nation's former position in manufacturing and exporting, a position forfeited by the war. It is stated that Germans are now bidding on Japanese contracts for machinery and tools at prices ranging from thirty to fifty per cent. below American quotation The Krupp plant at Essen has been completely transformed and now employs 53,000 men. In fact, Germany is [illegible] years, from competent testimony, to be in the midst of an industrial boom.

IRON MARKET SHOWING ACTIVITY.

One of the most cheerful pieces of news which has emanated from industrial and mercantile circles for some time is the statement of the Iron Age that the best buying in a year, in pig iron, is now taking place. It appears that the latest drop in prices in this basic commodity took it to a point where large users of the article decided it was time to begin buying. The figures reached were so low, taking into consideration the labor and other costs, that it was not at all likely lower prices would be seen.

There is a great deal of business waiting, just like the pig iron trade waited, to see whether the bottom has been reached. Consumers, and especially large consumers, are determined not to stock up extensively until they can form some idea whether prices have really reached the bottom.

Much high-cost material has gone into the production of articles the selling prices of which is lower than when materials were dear. This is one of the reasons for the cutting and passing of so many dividends on industrial stocks. The consequence is that at present the policy pursued is hand-to-mouth buying. When it is generally understood that the bottom of the decline has been reached there will be enough buying to cause a great deal of business merely for the purpose of providing commercial and industrial establishments with the quantity of goods normally carried in stock.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

THE PERFECT MAN.

It is to the effect that Audrey Munson is looking for a perfect man.

And who is Audrey Munson?

She is a sculptor's model.

She desires this perfect man as a husband—a perfect man for a perfect mate for a perfect model.

See?

Of course.

The dispatch runs.

"It is physical perfection that Miss Munson is seeking, as she is popularly regarded as being near that point herself. It doesn't make the least difference to her whether her ideal is a butcher, baker or candlestick-maker—whether he eats with his knife or says 'ain't' so long as he measures up to her standard.

There you are!

Miss Munson is a magnificent animal—and she wants a magnificent animal for a mate. Mind and morals cut no figure with Miss Munson. She is a worshiper of physical perfection She'll marry a man as dumb as a donkey—if he's physically perfect; she'll wed a man as immoral as a gorilla—if he's physically perfect But no physical imperfections will be tolerated by Miss Munson

And she doesn't care what the man's profession or business may be He may be a preacher—or a prizefighter, a business man—or a bootlegger a congressman—or a clown

For, love is not to be taken into consideration; and nationality, heredity or religion is to be ignored

Miss Munson rather coyly admits that she has already rejected quite a number of nearly perfect suitors One had a chin a fraction of an inch too long, another was too short by a slight [illegible] I don't know how the others failed to [illegible] Clothes, I'm, doubtless, Miss Munson knows

When her attention was called to Jack Dempsey, as a near perfect approaching her standard, [illegible] she replied that she hadn't any Jack—or any [illegible] who comes up to her exacting [illegible]

What is Miss Munson's [illegible]

She desires to be mother of perfect children—perfect physically; she expresses no concern for their minds or their morals.

If Miss Munson carries out her intent and purpose, she is in for disillusionment, probably. She forgets, or doesn't know, that heredity is "the omnibus in which all our ancestors ride," that she may be perfect herself and have a perfect husband; but that the offspring may be like some of their imperfect ancestors, and not like their perfect parents.

"For the first ten years of his life, a child should wear very little clothes, no shoes, and should learn Greek dances. He should spend all his time in the open air. Cultivation of his mind should come after his body is perfect."

Miss Munson is an admirable pagan.

CHARLEY DAWES.

I should like to call him "General"—
But I'll not;
For the mention of the title
Makes him hot.
Though he had the grit to earn it,
Had the gumption not to spurn it,
Yet he doesn't like it—dern it!—
Quite a lot.

Though he doesn't like to bear it—
'Tis no pose!—
And dislikes a deal to wear it—
So it goes!—
Still he got that title fairly;
For he did his duty squarely,
Played his part well, played it rarely—
Heaven knows!

For he's built upon the true-blue
Yankee plan,
Is a stalwart, loyal, clean
American.
But he's just so democratic,
Frankly, freely diplomatic,
That he's sometimes quite emphatic—
He's a man!

Yes, we've tried him, and we've found him
Short on flaws;
And we're going to rally round him
Just because—
Well, because the load can't stall him,
And the collar doesn't gall him,
And because we're free to call him—
Charley Dawes!

CUTTING DOWN THE BURDEN.

The Republican party is heartily and completely fulfilling its pledge to reduce the tax burdens of the citizens of the United States. Chairman Fordney of the committee on ways and means of the house of representatives now sees his way clear to make a large tax reduction this year, a still larger one next year, and a much larger one in the year following. In the majority report explaining the tax revision bill framed by the Republican committeemen, he predicts that the nation's tax bill will be reduced $193,640,000 this fiscal year, $377,790,000 in the calendar year 1922 and $790,330,000 in 1923 The total reduction for the three years is $1,361,766,000.

Mr. Fordney insisted in the majority report that the policy of the bill was "reducing rather than shifting tax burdens" Applying to individual taxpayers the net differences, Mr Fordney said they represented a reduction of seven dollars per capita, "or a saving to the average family of $35 per year"

This is not all the Republicans are doing to remedy the reckless expense of the previous administration, and to prevent similar heavy expense in the future. The limitation conference was called to obtain international consent to a reduction of the enormous expenditure of money at present necessitated by competitive defensive and offensive arrangements of a naval and military character. That this idea will be pressed with vigor on the assembled diplomats in Washington in November can not be doubted, and there is every prospect of a favorable outcome

Georges should have given Suzanne a tip that the present is an off year for placing any great degree of confidence in the psychology phase of the game.

MERCY MELTS LAW'S IRON GRIP ON YOUTH

Who Is Permitted To Attend Mother's Funeral Here.

Charles Smith, nineteen years old, under indictment for first degree murder was permitted to come to Marion today to gaze for the last time upon his mother, who risked detention in Summit county jail during the trial of his father for first degree murder by refusing to testify concerning an alleged conversation between herself and her son.

Both young Smith and his father were indicted following the killing of Peter Shur, wealthy Akron recluse. The father, Charles W. Smith, who first was placed on trial, testified that his son killed Shur, Young Smith, under oath as a witness, testified that his father killed Shur.

June 6, Mrs. Margaret Smith of Marion, divorced wife of the elder Smith, was placed on the stand.

"Did your son, Charles P. Smith, October 9, the day following the killing of Peter Shur, come to your home in Marion and tell you that he killed Shur?" the attorney for the defense asked

Grasping the arms of the witness chair until her knuckles showed white Mrs Smith sank back into the chair.

"I refuse to answer," she whispered.

The court asked the attorney for the defense, former County Prosecutor Cletius Roetzel, if he insisted upon an answer and whether he desired the woman held in contempt of court.

"No, she is a mother," replied Roetzel as he waved the woman from the stand.

A few days later the jury found the elder Smith to be "not guilty." He now is held in the Summit county jail as a material witness against his son, who will be tried this fall.

Today, at 9 o'clock in Marion, young Smith, accompanied by guards from Akron, looked for the last time upon his mother.

She died, taking to the grave the answer to the question, asked by the attorney who defended her former husband.

A fool and his father's money have a merry time.

NEW YORK SALES ARE ENORMOUS

Biggest Thing of Kind Ever Seen in That State, Says Big Wholesaler.

The fact that 625,000 bottles of Tanlac have been sold in the state of New York since its introduction there less than one year ago, is a big business item that will attract unusual attention throughout the entire East, for nothing like it has ever happened before. It breaks all records.

Mr. George B. Evans, manager of the Gibson-Srow Company, the well-known wholesale druggists, with branches in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, recently announced that the preparation was now selling in their trade territories alone at the phenomonal rate of approximately 500,000 bottles a year.

"If the present rate continues," said Mr. Evans, "this state alone will probably require considerably over 750,000 bottles a year. This is a tremendous figure, but I am really conservative in making this statement."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by The Dumble Pharmacy, and by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S LOOKING GLASS.

(BY HOWARD R. GARIS.)
(Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Uncle Wiggily, did you see my new purse?" asked Susie Littletail, the rabbit girl, one morning, as she danced on her tippy tiptoes over to the hollow stump bungalow where the bunny rabbit gentleman lived.

"Why no, Susie, I didn't see your purse," Uncle Wiggily answered. I should just love to look at it though," he added with a funny little twinkle of his left hind leg.

"Here it is!" laughed Susie, and she handed Mr. Longears a new purse her father had just bought for her at the ten and eleven cent store.

"Why, there isn't anything in it!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily in surprise as he opened Susie's purse. "Not so much as a penny!"

"I know there isn't!" Susie said, sort of looking down, bashful like, at her toes. "I haven't any money yet, but I thought maybe—that is you know—of course mother said I wasn't to ask anybody for pennies—but I can't help it if you put some in my new purse; can I, Uncle Wiggily?" And this time Susie looked boldly and bravely at bunny uncle.

"Of course not!" said Mr. Longears, with a queer smile just under his pink nose. "You can't help yourself, Susie. There. I've put some pennies in your new purse—and but, hello! What's this?" he suddenly asked, as he saw something shiny in the little beaded bag Susie had handed him. "This looks like a shiny new dollar!"

"It's only my looking glass," Susie answered, easy like.

"Looking glass!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Who ever heard of a mirror in a purse?"

"Oh all the girls have them," Susie said. "It's quite stylish."

"Well, it may be stylish," said the bunny gentleman, a bit serious, "But it isn't good for girls, or anybody else, to be looking in the glass all the while. I hope you don't do it, Susie."

"Oh, no'm—I mean, no, sir" said the little rabbit girl quickly. "I only look at my pocket glass once in a while to see if my nose is getting nice and pink—like yours!"

After that what could Uncle Wiggily do but take Susie to the ice cream six and seven cent store to buy her some lollypops? Of course that was all he could do and he did it.

"But I hope you don't look in the glass too often, Susie," said the bunny gentleman.

"Oh, no'm—I mean no, sir!" and Susie was quite fussed up, fearing Uncle Wiggily would think her vain or proud, which she wasn't a bit.

Well, after a while, not so very long, Susie and Uncle Wiggily reached the fourteen and fifteen cent candy shop, and the bunny gentleman bought the little rabbit girl some sassafras drops. They were on their way home going through the woods, and Susie stopped for a minute to open her purse.

"Dear me, Susie!" called the bunny gentleman, a little fussy like. "I hope you aren't stopping to look at your glass and powder your nose."

"Oh, no'm—I mean no, sir." Susie replied. "I was just looking to see if I had all of the lovely pennies you gave me."

Uncle Wiggily smiled at that, but his smile soon faded away when from behind a big tree a voice cried:

"And I'm just looking to see which one of your ears I shall nibble first! Boo—Wuff!" And out popped the bad old Bushy Bear.

"Come on, Susie! Run! Run!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

He and Susie ran as fast as they could, but the Bushy Bear ran after them, champing his teeth and growling.

"Ears! Ears! I must have ears!"

"Well, you shan't have Uncle Wiggily's!" cried Susie bravely, as she suddenly stopped in the bright sunshine and began to open her purse.

"Susie! Susie! Don't stop now to powder your nose, look at your glass or even count the pennies I gave you!" cried Uncle Wiggily "If you've lost any of them I'll give you more! Come on! Run!

"Wait until I fix the bear so he can't see to chase us," Susie answered.

"How ever can you do that?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"With the looking glass in my purse," Susie said. "I'll hold it so the sun will shine in the Bear's eyes and blind him. Then he can't see to chase us."

The bad chap stopped suddenly

And, surely enough, Susie flashed the sun off her looking glass into the eyes of the chasing bear. The bad chap stopped suddenly, put his paws over his eyes, danced around helplessly and cried.

"Where are you? Where are Uncle Wiggily's ears? I can't see them!"

"Don't you tell him!" whispered Susie. "Come on and run!" So the bunny gentleman and the little girl ran safely away from the Bad Bear, who couldn't see to chase them. And after that Uncle Wiggily never made any fun of the looking glass in Susie's pocketbook.

"Lite Is Preparation, Not Pursuit"

Says Ralph Parlette in his lecture, "The University of Hard Knocks." "You see the man pursuing hardest? By and by he will wail, 'They beat me to it.' We don't have to pursue. We just have to prepare for things, and as fast as we prepare for things, things come to us and say, 'here we are; please have us.'"

This homely philosophy seems to touch the heart of logic. Why, a savings account is nothing but preparation!

Things say to those with savings accounts: "Here we are; please have us."

No battle was ever won without preparation: no ambition ever attained. And one of the fundamental elements of any preparation is a savings account the product of systematic effort.

You can own a home, if you prepare; you can start in business; you can travel; any goal is achievable if you prepare by saving.

And this bank is eager to help you. Here you can expect sincere and ungrudging counsel; a friendly interest that means so much in encouragement.

We will help your savings grow with 4% interest.

DAILY STARS HAVE TWO BIG INNINGS AND WIN

Lorain Coco Down to Defeat, Eleven to Two.

MAKES SECOND VICTORY OVER LORAIN DOKEYS

Lefty Geller Proves To Be Puzzle for the Visitors Throughout the Contest.

[BY P. L. KRAMER.]

Two big innings early in the game gave the Marion Daily Stars their second victory of the season over the Lorain Dokeys at Lincoln park, Sunday afternoon. Barring the first and third innings, in each of which the locals scored five runs, it was a well played contest, but the lead secured had a tendency to lessen the interest of the fans.

"Lefty" Geller, who checked the Lorain team on its first visit, went the entire route, Sunday, and was a puzzle that the visitors could not solve. He was accorded brilliant support, particularly in the pinches, although the second run made by Lorain was the result of one of the two errors chalked against the Stars.

While Geller was just a little unsteady, it probably made him more difficult to solve. He allowed but six scattered hits and while he walked five batters, he struck out nine and kept hits from following his gifts. For the Lorain team, Mays started the mound work. He was unsteady from the start and was finally driven from the kopje in the third session. Fickes, a southpaw, replaced Mays and finished in nice style, keeping the hits scattered up to the finish.

Put Game on Ice.

After Geller struck out the visitors in the first inning, the Daily Stars came up in their half and put the game on ice. Uhl opened with a single and Lawson sacrificed him to second. Weller was safe when Reese dropped his fly. A pass to Jackman filled the bases. Conroy fanned for the second out. Lattimore singled to center and Uhl scored. Mays forced in a run by walking Fetter. On the first ball pitched, O'Donnell singled to right scoring Jackman and Lattimore and while O'Donnell was being run down between first and second, Fetter raced home.

Lorain started a rally in the third that was cut short by a double play. S. Jenkins opened with a double and scored on Beyen's single to right, the batter reaching second when the ball went through Jackman. O'Donnell made a sensational catch of Fickes' fly to left center and doubled Beyen at second.

In the same round the locals added five more.

Weller opened with a single and stole second. Jackman was passed and Conroy advanced them with a sacrifice. On the squeeze Lattimore put down a nice bunt scoring Weller while Lattimore was safe at first when Reese dropped the throw to first, Jackman scoring and Lattimore taking second. Fetter rolled out at first. O'Donnell was hit by a pitched ball and a pass to Geller filled the bassocks. Fickes then relieved Mays and forced in a run by walking Uhl. Lawson doubled down the right field line scoring O'Donnell and Geller, while Weller fanned for the third out.

Lorain scored its second run in the sixth after Geller fanned the first two batters. J. Jenkins was safe on Lawson's error, took second on an infield hit by Reese and stole third. The two runners worked a double steal with success. The locals repeated this performance in the eighth by Lawson and Weller singling and then pulling a double steal.

Tagging the Bases.

Shocker and Bayne silenced the Yankee batteries in a double header and the Browns won two games.

Meanwhile, the league leading Indians, with Sothern giving up only six hits, took the measure of the Red Sox.

Bunched hits off Bill Bailey of the Cardinals enabled the Giants to win Sunday into a field.

Harry Heilman's homer in the sixth with two on, helped Howard Ehmke celebrate his return to the mound after recovery from an injury, with a triumph over the A's.

Right Fielder Smith, of the Senators, made four of Washington's ten hits at Chicago. Mogridge pitched eight hall against the Sox.

Reuther made two two-baggers and gave the Reds but six hits in Brooklyn.

MARION TENNIS CLUB DEFEATS LEGION TEAMS

HANE BROTHERS STAGE BEST SETTO IN SINGLES

"Bud" Takes Second and Third Sets—Story of the Various Contests.

The team representing the Marion Tennis club won from the local American Legion team in the tennis tournament held Saturday afternoon at the club courts. The tournament consisted of four matches in singles and two doubles contests. In the singles each team won two matches, making the singles a draw.

The tennis club won the first match of doubles and left the outcome of the tournament doubtful until the completion of the last doubles setto. This last and deciding battle was staged between "Bud" Hane and Edgar Thomas for the legion and John Hane and T. R. Allen for the tennis club. The latter team won and brought victory to the club in place of a tie for honors. The set scores in the final match were 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Best in Singles.

The best match in singles was played between "Bud" and John Hane, the latter playing for the tennis club. John won the first set in good style, playing an excellent game and, working his service to perfection, he took his brother down with a score of 6-4. The second set was the story of the comeback of the legioner when, nearly at the point of defeat, the score being 5-2, he picked up on his game and won the second set 9-7. The third set also went to deuce, but "Bud," who was playing in much better form than in the first stages of the match, took the set and match with a score of 7-5.

Club Again Victorious.

The other singles matches only went to two sets. Richard Scott for the club, won from Walter Hane with scores of 6-1, 6-3, and the club again was victorious when Robert Von Kaenel defeated Effio King, 6-3, 6-1.

The legion won, however, when Thomas took over T. R. Allen in two sets with scores of 6-1, 6-3.

Walter Hane and Robert White also went down to defeat at the hands of Richard Scott and Robert Von Kaenel in the other doubles setto, making the tennis club victorious in the first match of doubles.

WITH THE PUGS

To Demand Forfeits.

New York, Aug. 22.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the coming Johnny Wilson-Bryan Downey middleweight championship bout at Jersey City, Labor day, will demand forfeits of $5,000 for weight and appearance, instead of the $1,000 originally announced, it became known today. Rickard, it is explained, wants to make sure that the fighters will not scale above the 160-pound limit.

Trapshooting.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—First events of the grand American handicap trapshooting tournament will be held today, on the range of the South Shore Country club. The tournament will continue during the week with hundreds of marksmen from all corners of the country participating.

It Still Holds.

The Marion Steam Shovel team, of the Industrial league, strengthened its hold on first place Saturday, by defeating the Silk Mills by a score of fourteen to six. The Shovelers had big rallies in the sixth and eighth frames and scored all of their runs.

For five innings Ash held the Shovelers scoreless and when he started the sixth the Silk Mills had a lead of four runs. In this frame the Silk Mill defense crumpled and the Shovelers took advantage by lunching hits off Ash and driving him from the mound, scoring six runs. Rowland replaced him and after pulling through the seventh safely, the league leaders started a second bombardment which netted eight runs.

Hawkins pitched a steady game, allowing but seven hits, while he struck out ten batters. He was effective in the pinches and was accorded some good support. The fielding of Lattimore and the hitting of Uhl were features.

Continues Winning Streak.

The Commercial-Huber team, of the Industrial league, continued its winning streak, Saturday, by defeating the Pollak-Power team by a score of six to three. The game was a battle between the pitchers with honors even on the hitting, but Gassaway proved more effective in the pinches. Both pitchers were accorded fine support.

It was the extra base hits that played a big role in the scoring and was in a large measure responsible for the victory of the Commercial-Hubers. Anderson and Parr rapped out doubles on which they later scored, while Price did the Babe Ruth specialty with one on Parr's double play unassisted topped a rally of the Pollak-Power team. The hitting of Garn was a feature.

VEIOCK ON SPORTS

New York, Aug. 22.—If George Gibson's blustering buccaneers go through the present week without stubbing a toe, the National league pennant race will be as good as over.

The Pirates started the week today, with a lead of six and one-half games over the second place Giants. Tomorrow they will wind up their farewell series of the season in Boston and Wednesday, will invade the Polo grounds for the last time this summer.

The fast-fading chances of the McGraw men will be strongly affected as a result of their meeting with Pittsburgh, this week.

New York is not out of the running and it probably will be some time before the race is settled to a mathematical certainty, but as the teams stand now, the Giants have a gigantic task ahead of them if they are to head the pacemakers.

Pittsburgh can afford to lose ground and still have the best of it, for McGraw's men have lost eight more games than the Pirates and have only thirty-six more to play against thirty-nine for the league leaders.

An idea of the handicap under which New York is working now is shown in the fact that if Pittsburgh gets a even break during the remainder of the season, the Giants must win twenty-five out of thirty-six games to capture the pennant. The Pirates, incidentally, may be expected to get better than an even break, for after they wind up the present eastern road trip they will play a majority of their remaining games at home, while the Giants must hit the road.

At the rate the Pirates have been going, they will wind up the season with about 100 victories against fifty-four defeats, unless they falter badly from now on.

In the American league, the Indians and Yankees are so close together today that figuring mathematical chances is scarcely worth while. Cleveland has thirty-nine more games to play, however, and should the World's champions win nineteen of these games, the Huggins men would have to win twenty-three out of their remaining thirty-two to cop the gonfalon.

STOLL LOSES TENNIS LAURELS TO THOMAS

Youth Will Be Served Again Is Demonstrated.

VETERAN GOES DOWN IN STRAIGHT SETS

In the challenge round of the Clark cup singles tournament, staged yesterday afternoon before a large crowd of spectators, the city title and a hold on the three-year Clark cup changed hands when Edgar Thomas, challenger, defeated Howard R. Stoll, last season's champion, in three straight sets with scores of 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

The match was characterized by the mediocre playing of both contestants, neither played being up to form. Thomas started out by winning four straight games, apparently without much opposition on the part of Stoll. The ex-champion then sandwiched in a game only to be followed by two more to Thomas' credit. Staging a fair comeback Stoll by several pretty placements managed to take two games, allowing his opponent only two points. Thomas, however, won the next game and the set on his service, the score for the first setto being 6-4.

A Near Duplication.

The second set was nearly a duplication of the first, both players stroking the ball carefully, seeming afraid to take any long chances.

Thomas got up to the net in good style during this set, but failed to put across his usual spectacular placements. Instead Thomas would return the ball direct to Stoll and Stoll in turn would fail to place and the ball would go back and forth over the net many times before either would gain a point. Thomas took three straight games at the beginning of the second set and with such a start managed to win in a rather easy fashion with a score of 6-3.

In the third and last set Stoll improved his game and played better tennis then than in any other stage of the match. Thomas, however, again started out with the winning of three consecutive games before Stoll could get started. The ex-champ tightened up and played better tennis for several games, the score going back and forth. Thomas took the wind out of Stoll by winning his fifth game on a long-played deuce contest and finished up the set and match in good style by winning a love-game.

Robbed of Interest.

Neither player was up to form and the uncertainty on the part of the two which forced them to careful playing robbed the match of interest from the spectator's standpoint. Spectacular plays and long range shots are rarely witnessed during the match. Both players have been known to play much better tennis.

Thomas, the winner of the championship, has gained his first leg on the three-year cup which changed hands yesterday, and, because of his ability as a netter, many local fans and players look forward to a hard fight when any challenger shall try to wrest the title and cup from its grasp.

Following is the score of the match by games:

First set:
Thomas	4	4	4	6	1	4	4	6	1	4—6
Stoll	2	2	1	4	4	6	1	4	4	2—3

CHAPTER VIII.

Webster's trunk went aboard the steamer early the following morning, and at noon he entered a taxi with his hand baggage and was driven to the levee where La Estrellita lay tugging gently at her mooring lines Owing to the congestion of freight and traffic the chauffeur stopped his cab a little distance from the gangplank, where Webster discharged him with a liberal tip

The latter, however, swung his passenger's bag and suitcase to the ground picked them up and started for the gangplank

"Never mind my baggage, lad," Webster called after him "One of the ship's boys will care for it."

The chauffeur turned. "You've been generous with me sir," he answered, "so I think I had better carry your baggage aboard If you permit a deck boy to handle it, you merely have to give another tip and that would be sheer wanton waste. Why shouldn't I earn the one you gave me?"

I hadn't figured it out that way, son, so here's another half dollar for being the only existing specimen of your species in captivity. My stateroom is No 34, upper deck, port side," Webster answered, smiling. The man took the tip eagerly and hurried toward the gangplank; the quartermaster on duty shouldered a way for him and he darted aboard.

Webster followed leisurely. At the gangplank the purser's clerk halted him examined his tickets and punched them.

"Where is the other man?' he asked. "You have two tickets here."

"Oh that blamed valet of mine," Webster answered, and glanced around as if in search of that mythical functionary. "It would be like the stupid fellow to miss the boat,' he added. 'When he comes—"

Webster ceased speaking abruptly. He was looking straight into the malevolent orbs of Pucker-eye, who was standing just behind the clerk at the foot of the gangplank.

"I wonder if Pop-eye's around, also," Webster thought, and he faced about. Pop-eye was standing in back of him, leaning over the railing of the gangway

'Which is the valet?' the purser's clerk asked, scanning the names on the tickets

'Andrew Bowers"

"All right, Mr. Webster," the other answered with that genial camaraderie that seems inseparable from all of his calling "When Andrew comes I'll send him aboard"

He started to pass the tickets back to Webster, but a detaining hand rested on his arm, while a dark thumb and forefinger lifted the trailing strips of tickets Pucker-eye was examining them also.

The purser's clerk drove his elbow backward violently into Pucker-eye's midriff and shook him off roughly.

'What do you mean, you black-and-tan hound?" he demanded. "Since when did you begin to O. K my work?"

Pucker-eye made no reply to this stern reproof. He accepted the elbow with equanimity and faced Webster with an evil smile that indicated mutual recognition.

"Bueno," he said "The senor he goes sail on La Estrellita for San Buenaventura, no?"

"So you came nosing around to see about it, eh? Doing a little plain gumshoe work, I see."

Pucker-eye bored. By the simple exercise of courage and bad manners he had looked at John Stuart Webster's ticket and was now familiar with his name and destination.

Webster glowered darkly at Pucker-eye and said

"Well, you scoundrelly cutthroat, what are you going to do about it? Try a little of your knife work on me, I suppose?"

The fellow grinned—the kind of grin that is composed of equal parts of ferocity and knowledge of superior strength That grip did more to disconcert Webster than the knowledge that he had earned for himself two bloodthirsty and implacable enemies, for Pucker-eye was the first of his breed that Webster had ever seen smile under insult. That cold smile infuriated him

Pucker-eye took out a cigarette case selected a cigarette and presented the case to Webster His bad manners in selecting his own cigarette first was deliberate, as Webster knew. It was the Latin-American's method of showing his contempt

"We shall meet again, Meester Webstaire,' he said 'May I offer a cigarette for the—what you Americans call—the keepsake? No?' He smiled brightly and closed his puckered eye in a knowing wink

Webster took his tickets from the purser, folded them, placed them in his pocket and for a few seconds regarded Pucker-eye contemptuously

"When we meet again, you scum" he retorted quietly, "you shall have no difficulty in remembering me. You may keep your cigarette"

His long, powerful right arm shot out, like a forceps his thumb and forefinger closed over Pucker-eye's rather flat nose, he squeezed, and with a shrill scream of agony Pucker-eye went to his knees

Still holding the wretch by his proboscis Webster turned quickly in order that his face might be toward Pop-eye.

"Pop-eye," he said, "if you take a hand in this, I'll twist your nose, too, and afterward I'll throw you in the river"

He turned to Pucker-eye.

"Up, thou curious little one," he said in Spanish and jerked the unhappy rascal to his feet. The latter clawed ineffectually at the terrible arm which held him, until, presently discovering that the harder he struggled the harder Webster pinched his nose, he ceased his struggles and hung limply, moaning with pain and rage in the grip of the American.

"Good!" Webster announced, slacking his grip a little. With his left hand he deftly extracted a hair from each flank of the screaming little scoundrel's scant mustache and held them before the latter's tear filled eyes

"My friend," he said gently, "mark how the gringo gives his little dirk brother a lesson in deportment. Behold, if I have given thee a souvenir of our meeting, I also have taken one By this pinched and throbbing nose shall I be remembered when I am gone; by these hairs from thy rat's mustache shall I remember thee Go, and thrust not that nose into a gringo's business again. It is unsafe."

He released Pucker-eye, made his way through the crowd to his room, looked in, saw that his baggage was there, and walked around on the starboard side to join in the general farewell of all on board to the crowd on the levee

At the shore end of the gangplank Pucker-eye and Pop-eye still waited. The unfortunate Pucker-eye was weeping with pain and futile rage and humiliation, but Webster noticed that Pop-eye's attention was not on his friend but upon each passenger that boarded the ship, of which there were the usual number of late arrivals. As each passenger approached, Pop-eye scanned him with more than casual interest.

Webster smiled. "Looking for that valet they heard me talking about," he reflected. "Pop-eye, you're a fine, capable lad I thought you had the brains of the two. You're not going away until you've had a chance to size up the reenforcements at my command, are you?"

He lighted a cigar and leaned over the rail as the steamer, gathering speed, swept down river.

"Good by, you golden fizz and chicken gumbo," he called as the city receded and the low, wooded shores below the city came into view.

When he had finished his cigar he cast the stump overboard watched it until it disappeared astern and then went around to stateroom No 34 As he stepped in and closed the door a masculine voice said very pleasantly.

"How do you do?'

Mr. Webster looked up and beheld a young man, arrayed in a very fancy pair of light blue silk pajamas stretched at his ease in the upper berth.

John Stuart Webster stared at the stranger for several seconds and concluded he was invading the sanctity of another's stateroom "Excuse me," he said, "I guess I'm in the right church but the wrong pew," and he stepped out and looked for the number on the stateroom To his surprise it was No. 34 after all, so he stepped back into the stateroom and favored the stranger with another scrutiny.

"It does appear to me, my friend," he said presently, "that I detect something strangely familiar about your pajamas"

"I wouldn't go the least bit surprised Mr Webster, I found them in your suitcase."

Fell a silence of perhaps half a minute Then:

"I dislike to appear inquisitive," Webster began, "but the fact is, neighbor, I'm curious to know where you got that book I observe you are reading Samuel Butler's 'Way of All Flesh,' and that the book is slightly damaged. Recently I purchased such a book in—"

"Pray do not take the trouble to explain" the other answered airily. "I discovered this excellent book in your suitcase also. In fact, for me, that suitcase has proved to be a repository of treasures"

John Stuart Webster's neck came out of his collar with the suddenness of a turtle snapping at a fly, he drew himself up beside the top berth until his face was on a level with his unbidden guest's, upon whom he bent a look of mingled emotions.

"Who the devil are you?" he demanded

"I regret I have no card but even if I had it would be no kindness to inflict upon an American gentleman the cognomen my parents honored me with, for it is long and many-jointed, like a peanut and embodies the names of all the saints in the calendar Moreover just at present I am traveling under an alias I am known as Mr. Andrew Bowers'

"And your occupation?' Webster managed to articulate.

'Valet de chambre to that prince of gentlemen Mr John S Webster,' the other replied with a mischievous gleam in his dark eyes.

Mr Webster sat down limply on the settee. He was undecided whether to roar with laughter or shriek with rage, while he struggled for a decision Andrew Bowers blew smoke rings at the ceiling

'Haven't I seen you before?' Webster queried presently.

"I wouldn't be surprised. I drove you down to the steamer in a taxi half an hour ago. You will recall that the taxi driver carried your luggage aboard."

Webster gazed around the stateroom "Where have you hidden your livery?" he demanded.

"I wrapped it in a newspaper, then, seeking a moment when the deck outside was deserted, I stepped forth in my—I beg your pardon, your—pajamas and tossed it overboard"

"But apparently you did not bring aboard with you a suit of clothes to take the place of your livery?"

"Quite true—lamentably so, Mr Webster. Perhaps you will accept my desperate need as an excuse for borrowing your pajamas I notice you have another suit of them. Fortunate man!"

Andrew Bowers was a man of perhaps thirty years, five feet ten inches tall, and apparently in excellent health He might have weighed a hundred and seventy pounds and he was undeniably handsome.

While Webster was wondering whether his companion was merely a high class tramp or an absconding bank cashier, a knock sounded on the stateroom door. He opened it and the purser stood in the entrance

"Ticket, please?" he announced

Webster surrendered both tickets receiving in turn two seat checks for the dining saloon and the purser passed on to the next cabin

Andrew Bowers smiled a small, prescient smile but said nothing and presently John Stuart Webster broke the silence 'Well," he ordered 'sing the song or tell the story'

"I noticed you surrendered my ticket to the purser,' the young man answered irrelevantly, "and I am glad of that. I take it as prima facie evidence that you have made up your mind to accept my company."

"You're too infernally cool and cocksure, my friend," Webster warned him testily. "I pride myself on a sense of humor and I dearly love a joke until it's carried too far, but be advised in time young man and don't try to play horse with me My acceptance or non acceptance of you is a subject for future discussion, since at present we have some fiduciary matters before us You owe me fifty dollars for your ticket, Andrew Bowers, and in view of the fact that I never saw you before today, suppose we start the voyage by squaring the account'

Andrew Bowers sat up in the berth and let his legs drape over the side "Mr. Webster," he began seriously, "if, prior to the arrival of the purser to collect the tickets, you had handed my ticket to me, saying 'Here is your ticket, Mr. Bowers. Be kind enough to reimburse me to the extent of fifty dollars,' I should have been compelled to admit then, as I do now, that I haven't fifty dollars. Fortunately for me, however, you surrendered the ticket to the purser before acquainting yourself with the state of my fortunes, the voyage has commenced and whether you like it or not, my dear sir, I am your guest from now until we reach San Buenaventura Rather an interesting situation don't you think?'

John Stuart Webster was of Scotch ancestry He had a hereditary regard for baubees. He was a business man Prodigal spender though he was and generous to a fault, the fact remained that he always made it a point to get value received and he was prodigal with his own money, he preferred that the privilege of prodigality with the Websterian funds should remain an inalienable prerogative of the sole surviving member of the Webster family.

"I think you're too cool, young man," Webster retorted. "Just a trifle too cocksure Up to the present moment you have proffered no evidence why you should not be adjudged a cad, and I do not like cads and must decline to permit one to occupy the same stateroom at my expense. You are clever and amusing and I laughed at you, but at the same time my sense of humor is not so great as to cause me to overlook your impudence and laugh with you. Now, if you have anything to say, say it quickly, because you're going to go away from here—in a hurry."

"I plead guilty to the indictment, Mr. Webster, and submit as an excuse the fact that desperate circumstances require desperate measures. I am not begging my way, neither am I beating it, for the reason that both forms of travel are repugnant to me. I am merely taking advantage of certain fortuitous circumstances to force you, an entire stranger, to extend to me a credit of fifty dollars until we reach San Buenaventura, when you will be promptly reimbursed"

"It is not my habit," Webster retorted stiffly, "to extend credit to strangers who demand it"

"I do not demand it sir I beg it of you, and because I cannot afford to be refused I took care to arrange matters so that you would not be likely to refuse my request. Really, I do not mean to be cocksure and impudent, but before you throw me out I'd like to let you in on a secret about yourself"

'Well?'

'You're not going to throw me out"

"Why not?'

"Because you can't"

"That's fighting talk Now, just to prove to you the depth of error in which you flounder, young man, I am about to throw you out' And he grasped Andrew Bowers in the grip of a grizzly bear and whisked him out of the top berth

'Wait one second," his helpless victim cried. 'I have something to say before you go any further"

"Say it" Webster ordered "Your tongue is the only part of you that I cannot control"

"When you throw me out on deck," Andrew Bowers queried, 'do your pajamas go with me? Does the hair go with the hide"

"They cost me sixteen dollars in Salt Lake City, but—good lord, yes, I can't throw you out mother naked; d—n it, I can't throw you out at all"

'Didn't I tell you so? Be a good fellow and turn me loose"

'Certainly—for the time being You'll stay locked in this stateroom while I have a talk with the captain He'll probably dig up a shirt, a pair of dungarees and some old shoes for you and set you ashore before we get out of the river. If he doesn't do that he'll keep you aboard and you'll shovel coal for your passage"

'But I'm Andrew Bowers and the purser has collected my first class ticket!"

"What of it? I shall declare—and with truth—that you are not Andrew Bowers that you are not my valet, and that I did not buy the ticket for you I dare you to face the captain in my pajamas and prove you aren't a stowaway."

'You would win on that point," the baffling guest admitted, "but it is a point you will not raise Why? Because I have another trump up my kimono." He climbed back into the upper berth and from that vantage point gazed down benevolently upon John Stuart Webster "I'm disappointed in you," he continued sadly "I thought you'd show a little normal human curiosity about me—and you haven't You do not ask questions or I could explain, while I cannot volunteer information without seeming to seek your pity, and that of course would be repugnant to me I am hoping you will accept my word of honor that you shall be reimbursed in two hours after we land in San Buenaventura

'New music to your song my friend, but the same old words' Webster retorted and stepped to the stateroom door "You're doomed to shovel coal or go ashore'

'Listen. If I go ashore, your responsibility for my life ceases Mr Webster, but if the chief engineer happens to be short one coal passer and the captain sends me down to the stokehole, your responsibility for my death begins, for I'll be put ashore publicly at San Buenaventura and two hours later I'll be facing a firing squad in the cemetery at the Catedral de la Vera Cruz."

"Gosh," John Stuart Webster murmured dazedly, "I'm afraid I can't take a chance like that for fifty dollars I'm whipped to a frazzle. Any time I'm sitting in back of a royal flush and the other fellow bluffs me out of the pot, I always buy the wine When it arrives we shall drink to our better acquaintance. Pending its arrival, please be advised that you are welcome to my pajamas, my cigarettes, my book and my stateroom. You are my guest and you owe me nothing, except, perhaps, your confidence, although I do not insist upon that point. Where I come from every man kills his own snakes"

And he held up his hand for Andrew Bowers to shake.

"Mr. Webster," the latter declared feelingly, "I am not a lord of language, so I cannot find words to thank you I agree with you that you are entitled to my confidence. My name is—"

"Tut, tut, my boy Your name is Andrew Bowers, and that identifies you sufficiently for the time being When I suggested that I was entitled to a measure of your confidence I meant on a few minor points only—points on which my curiosity has been abnormally aroused.

"Very well, my friend Fire away."

"Are you an American citizen?"

"No, I am a citizen of Sobrante."

"You had no money to pay for your passage to San Buenaventura so you schemed to make me pay your way Hence I take it that your presence in the capital of your native country is a matter of extreme importance and that the clerk in the ticket office of the Caribbean Mail line is a friend of yours."

"Quite true. He knew my need."

"You were under surveillance and could not leave New Orleans for San Buenaventura unless you left secretly. When I purchased both berths in this stateroom and the ticket clerk knew I held a first-class ticket for a valet that was not, he decided to show off on me a valet that was. Disguised in the livery of a chauffeur and carrying hand baggage you hoped to get aboard without being detected by your enemies who watched the gangplank."

Andrew Bowers nodded.

"I do not know Mr Webster I hope so If I did not—well, the instant the steamer drops anchor in the roadstead at San Buenaventura she will be boarded and searched by the military police, I will be discovered and—" He shrugged

"Lawn party in the cemetery eh?" Webster suggested

Andrew Bowers reached under his pillow and produced two heavy automatic pistols and a leathern box containing five clips of cartridges These he exhibited in silence and then thrust them back under the pillow

"I see, Andrew In case you're cornered, eh? Well, I think I would prefer to die fighting myself"

"I'm not worried Mr. Webster Somehow, I think I run the gantlet safely."

"But why did you throw your livery overboard?"

"It was of no further use to me"

"But you'll have to have some clothes in which to go ashore you amazing man"

"Not at all. The steamer will arrive in the harbor at San Buenaventura late in the afternoon—too late to be given pratique that day After dark I shall drop overboard and endeavor to swim ashore and in view of that plain clothes would only prove an embarrassment. I shall land in my own country naked and penniless, but once ashore I shall quickly find shelter. I'll have to risk the sharks of course"

'Man eaters?'

'The boy is swimming with them'

"You're breaking my heart' Webster declared sympathetic ally 'I suppose you're going to feign illness throughout the voyage."

'Not I sir' Illness that will interfere with my appetite I have prescribed for myself a mild attack of inflammatory rheumatism as an excuse for remaining in bed and having my meals brought to me This service, of course, will necessitate some slight expense in the way of tips but I am hoping you will see your way clear to taking care of that for your guest'

Silently Webster handed Andrew Bowers ten dollars in silver "That ought to hold you' he declared 'For the rest you're up to some political skullduggery in Sobrante and what it is and what your real name are two subjects in which I am not interested Let it be understood that you are my valet, Andrew Bowers That's all I know about you and it's all I care to know about you In fact, the less I know about you the less will I have to explain in the event of your sudden demise"

'Fair enough,' quoth Andrew Bowers "You're a man after my own heart. I thank you'

I was thinking about slipping on the roof night before last and I said to my mother that if anything happened to me that would be the only man in the family gone, and pa ant said to not let that hinder me but to go ahead and do whatever foolishness I was thinking about, and my mother put another egg on my plate and said that my father would still be left Then my grandfather, said to me in a kinda low voice, making out like he did not want my father to hear that my father is not really one of the family but is only related to us by marriage Then my father laughed and him and my uncle looked around to see if they had left anything on the table, and they hadn't so they got up and went to work

I went out the kitchen way and slammed the door like I had gone outside and snuck back on my bare feet and went in the pantry and there was half of a green apple pie where the grown ups had et some of it last night after I had went to bed without saying anything to me about it and I climb out of the window with it and went out and climb through the manure hole and went over to drive my cows out.

I offered Jubilee a little of the pie to see if he liked it, but he didn't so I had to eat it all.

I offered Jubilee a little of the pie to see if he liked it, but he didn't so I had to eat it all I did not think he would like it I guess that is what make a dog and a boy such good friends. They do not like to eat what each other like.

Yesterday was Sunday and there was not anything doing.

Red's father which is a huckster has got a coop full of turkeys that he is going to huck. They are in the barn and we went in to look at them and I had a good idee and told them about it, and Red said it was all right with him, so we pulled all of the tail feathers out of all of the turkeys, because turkeys that is going to be et do not need tail feathers, and then we was going to go out to Rocky River and play Indien, and we opened the barn door to sneak out and Red's mother was there with her arms folded looking at us like she would snap our heads off.

I do not know how I got over the back fence and neither do the other fellow but when I had got over I did not have any more tail feathers than the turkey There was not one of us had a tail feather left but Red was the only one she grabbed. We did not wait to see what she done to him Dough Britches which is Red's brother was afraid to go home when we had got our cows in, I wanted him to go out by the river and live on apples and grapes and carrots and be a wild man, but he said he would rather get licked than eat a carrot and I don't blame him.

My father said after supper that the only man in the house ought to go to bed early, so I went up and pulled Jubilee up Red's mother ought to be glad we done it because the turkeys had more room in the coop when their tails was gone.

That tell-tale glance in the mirror

—Does it leave you quite satisfied?

The girl with the fresh, smooth skin turns away thoroughly self-satisfied—nothing to spoil her evening. No little blemishes to conceal—nothing to worry about.

But the girl with defects of complexion which must be covered up—how can she have a good time? Her pleasure will always be marred by distrust as to her appearance.

Yet every girl could have the radiant healthy skin which is the foundation of all beauty. Intelligent care is the secret—thorough cleansing the basis.

Stimulate your skin

The network of minute cells and glands which compose the surface of your skin should never be allowed to become sluggish and inactive. The dirt, oil secretions, perspiration and remains of rouge and powder, clog the pores, enlarge them and produce blackheads and blemishes.

Once every day your skin should be thoroughly cleansed with soap and water. This is the only safe and the only sure means of cleansing.

If you use a fine mild soap there is no danger of irritation. Women who fear it have been using the wrong soap.

Palmolive, with its mild creamy lather, is lotion-like in its action. It freshens, revives and stimulates and leaves the skin delightfully fresh and rosy.

The finest soap Costs only 10 cents

Notwithstanding its rare ingredients, Palmolive is offered to its millions of users at 10 cents a cake. The enormous volume in which it is produced make the moderate price possible.

Palmolive factories work day and night—the rare oils are imported in vast quantities.

Thus a great luxury may be enjoyed at the price of ordinary soap. You can pay more but you can't get a finer, milder cleanser.

Use it for bathing

You can afford to enjoy the daily luxury of a Palmolive bath. Keep a cake on your washstand for the sake of smooth hands.
